

Gregory Rusovich joined Transoceanic Shipping Company in 1981 after receiving his Political Science degree from Tulane University in New Orleans. Mr. Rusovich served as President and Chief Operating Officer of the global company from 1989 - 1992, and as President and Chief Executive Officer from 1992 – 2005. Mr. Rusovich devised and implemented the company's strategy to "go global" launching 25 international offices with a primary focus on the energy and emerging markets. The profitable quest of the Transoceanic group drew the interest of the globe's largest logistics firms, and the company was acquired by Agility (previously PWC of Kuwait) in 2005. Subsequently, Mr. Rusovich served as President and Chief Executive Officer of the public corporation's subsidiary, Agility Projects Logistics (Transoceanic) from 2005 – 2008. In this leading executive role, he led the company's operations as well as the company's aggressive merger and acquisition efforts. Mr. Rusovich subsequently launched Transoceanic Development, a firm dedicated to global transportation and humanitarian logistics. Transoceanic Development served as a leader in providing critically needed logistics services in key parts of the Middle East and East Africa. Mr. Rusovich sold Transoceanic Development's East African operation in 2017. He remains CEO, Transoceanic Development based in New Orleans, Louisiana

Born and raised in New Orleans, Mr. Rusovich is also very active in numerous past and present civic pursuits and has received many awards and honors for his many civic endeavors. He has dedicated his civic efforts toward post Katrina New Orleans reform and recovery issues with a focus on global trade, economic development, criminal justice and tourism. In that capacity, he serves as Chairman, Louisiana Board of International Commerce, appointed by former Governor Bobby Jindal where he remains in the role under Governor Jeff Landry. He was also appointed by Governor Jindal to the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans having served as a Commissioner and Chairman.

Mr. Rusovich is currently Chairman, Metropolitan Crime Commission and Young President's Organization (Gold) Louisiana. He is also past Chairman, Greater New Orleans, Inc., Business Council of New Orleans and the River Region, New Orleans and Company, and Regional Business Council Coalition. He also served as Chairman of the New Orleans Crime Coalition, and the New Orleans Police and Justice Foundation. In addition, he serves as a Board Member of the World Trade Center, Jefferson Business Council, and a former Board Member of the New Orleans Business Alliance, Bridge House/Grace House, Crimestoppers, World War II PT-305 Advisory Board, and Metairie Park Country Day School. He serves as the Honorary Consul General of Serbia to the State of Louisiana and is the recipient of the 2015 Gold Medal from the Republic of Serbia.

In New Orleans' Tricentennial year, he was one of "300 for 300", being one of 300 people who "have made New Orleans New Orleans" during its entire history. Mr. Rusovich most recently received the Eugene J. Schreiber Award, recognizing his record of promoting international business development in Louisiana. He received the Boy Scouts of America 2019 Distinguished Citizens Award.

Additionally, he received the Young Leadership Council's Role Model Award in 1991; the Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award in 2000; the Lifetime Membership Award from the World Trade Club in 2004; Crimestoppers' George Loker Community Service Award in March 2010; Propeller Club Maritime Man of the Year 2010; 2010 recipient of City Business' Driving Forces; one of Family Services Ten Outstanding Persons in 2011 and was inducted into the Junior Achievement Hall of Fame in 2011. In December 2012, Mr. Rusovich was honored by St. Charles Avenue Magazine as one of its Activists of the Year. In October 2015 he received the Lynne and Jerome Goldman Criminal Justice Reform Award from Court Watch NOLA. He was recognized in 2023, by Men of Fashion receiving it's Prix d'Elegance award. He has served as keynote speaker for the graduates of NOPD's Recruit Class 179, Crimestopper's annual awards luncheon and the Journal of Commerce Breakbulk Conference held in New Orleans. He is also a frequently published editorial author in newspapers in Louisiana and Florida.

Mr. Rusovich is married to Suzanne Walther Rusovich. Together they have two children, Colin (wife Sydney) and Nicholas. He is an avid football and basketball fan and enjoys tennis and fishing...when time permits.